Queen's Need Win to Stay In Title Hunt

By SYD WAGNER
(Daily Sports Writer)

Despite the fact that the Red Gridders have been eliminated from the title hunt there is nevertheless a steady hum of ceaseless activity from the direction of Molson Stadium where the McGill Redmen are getting into shape for their forthcoming battle with the galloping Gaels.

The new spirit and power displayed by the Tricolour Squad in their last two games in which they upset the Varsity Blueboys took everyone by surprise and is reminiscent of their championship team of two years back. However the gallant Gaels will meet stern opposition from the powerful Red ground machine which was so effective against Western last week.

After a week of heavy drill the Redmen wind up their activities with a light signal drill and all signs point to a second win for rampaging Redmen over the boys from Kingston. A victory for the Gaels would give them a mathematical chance to take the college crown and a determined Tricolour contingent will step on the gridiron to avenge a former defeat at the hands of the McGill outfit.

Full Red Team

The Red team will be in fine shape for the encounter with the exception of Knox and Bradsher who were injured in the Western encounter; as a result Moore of the Intermediate team will dress in case he is needed and Ricky Read will also be ready should there be any injury in the backfield.

Percy Foster who started off at the kicking half is still out as the result of a muscle injury suffered in the season opener. Captain Alex Hamilton will handle the punting and is expected to turn in his usually fine all round performance and Dave Whitrow will again replace Greenwood at snap.

Bismarck in Game

Stronach at quarterback who initiated his running forward pass in the last game will probably attempt to use it again when the going gets tough tomorrow. The backfield duties will be ably handled by Merrifield and Keeter who are always a potent threat to the opposing forces.

A sad blow to the Tricolour is the loss of Jack Brown the sensational kicking half. This evening the Redmen will prepare themselves for the game with a final talk in the Union.

RUSSET MANTLE BEGINS DEC. 7

Play to Be Shown December 7, 8, 9

Many Vacancies for Scenery, Tickets, Program, Lighting

The Players' Club has decided to hold its initial production, "Russet Mantle" by Lynn Riggs on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, December 7, 8, 9.

Rehearsals are now in full swing under the direction of Mr. John Mellor responsible for the Club's productions of "French Without Tears" and "Richard of Bordeaux." Most of the eight leading roles have already been cast, but there remain a few minor ones to be filled. Make up classes will begin on Tuesday at five o'clock in the Club room, and all those who signed up for make up are asked to be present, as this first meeting is important. A welcome is extended by (Continued on Page Four)

JAMES TO ADDRESS NEWMANITES SUNDAY

Professor F. Cyril James, McGill's newly named principal, will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Newman Club on Sunday morning. The meeting will take place in Congress Hall, 454 Dorchester St. W. and will be preceded by Mass and breakfast. The topic of his speech has not yet been announced.

Professor James came to McGill this year to take over the directorship of the School of Commerce. Previous to his coming to McGill University, Professor James was connected with the London School of Economics and with the University of Pennsylvania. While he was at that latter institution he was chosen one of the four directors of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Alumni Footballers Dance Saturday Eve

To the music of Blake Sewell's orchestra, with the intermission enjoyed by a snake dance and highland tunes by pipers of the Black Watch, Queen's Alumni of Montreal will hold an informal dance in the ballroom of the Mount Royal Hotel tomorrow evening, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

This football prom, following the custom of last year's informal "Fan Dance," will introduce both coaches and members of the Queens and McGill squads to the dancers.

Originating with the purpose of giving a warm welcome to members of visiting teams, the informal reunites all intercollegiate football fans. Tickets may be obtained from the Union Tuck Shop at a dollar per person plus tax.

Insp.-General McNaughton Reviews McGill Contingent

OFFICIALS PRESENT

First Inspection of This Nature Since War Began

Major General A. C. L. McNaughton, C.B., C.M.G., Commander of the First Division, C.A.S.E., will take the salute of the C.O.T.C. at the march past during half-time of the McGill-Queens game at the Molson Stadium on Saturday afternoon, October 4. General McNaughton will be accompanied by Chancellor, Sir Edward Beatty, Principal Douglas and Brigadier J. P. Archambault. This is the first march past to be held in Montreal since the war began and it will be the second time that the Commander of Canada's First Division has appeared at McGill.

The McGill Contingent, C.O.T.C., will fall in on the university Soccer Field, north of the Stadium and on the east side of and adjoining Douglas Hall at 2 o'clock. The Contingent will march to the Stadium and take up positions in the east end of the North Stand.

All the members will leave the stand a few minutes before half-time and the Platoon Markers having taken up their positions, the Bugler will sound "Fall In" and all Officers and Other Ranks will fall in in their proper places ready to move off. Then, following the usual commands, the March Past will take place.

Band to Be Present

Both the McGill Band and the Pipe Band will take part in the ceremony, the former playing the Contingent past when in Column of Route and the latter will play the Contingent past in Column of Platoons. Their positions will be opposite the Saluting Base.

General McNaughton's visit is of particular interest to McGill owing to the fact that he graduated from the university with degrees of M.Sc. and B.Sc. He is a former President of the National Research Council and for two years he was a member of the instructional staff of the university and was in a private engineering practice for a few months before the outbreak of the war.

Relieved of Research Post

General McNaughton has been relieved of his duties as President of the National Research Council and has once again taken up active military service from which he retired on June 1, 1935. He will take over as Inspector-General of units, First Canadian Division, C.A.S.F. and according to the announcement of the Defence Department he "will assume command of the First (Continued on Page Four).

ETIENNE BAND PLAYS AT LAST TEA DANCE

The last informal football tea dance of the current season will be held in the Union Ballroom tomorrow evening from five to seven-thirty. Archie Etienne will again provide the music. This is the third year that he has played at college dances, and he has proven popular with senior and freshman alike.

The Union House Committee believe that this tea-dance should be even better attended than any of the previous ones; there being no better way of getting rid of the chilly feeling which follows a football game played so late in the fall.

Tickets may be obtained at the Union Tuck Shop at the price of one dollar per couple, which includes refreshments.

STUDENT GROUP PLANS PROGRAM

Representatives Meet in Strathcona Hall Today

Prepare for Conference of Canadian University Students

Today at 5 p.m. the first meeting of the McGill Student Assembly will be held in the main ballroom of Strathcona Hall. This is an open meeting for all students, and every prominent organization on the campus has been asked to send a delegate. A statement will be given on the activity of the Canadian Student Assembly and the McGill Student Assembly over the past few months.

The main purpose will be to discuss finances and other preparations for the National Conference of Canadian University Students to be held this year from December 27 to 31. The McGill group plans to send about thirty students to this conference.

The Canadian Student Assembly represents the students of almost every university in Canada. Last year, as a result of its scholarship (Continued on Page Four)

Cunning Coeds of R. V. C. Enter Plumbers' Playroom

By M. P. N.

To-day the cunning coeds of R.V.C. will make a hopeful entrance into the PLUMBERS' PLAYROOM, which, we should like to remind our readers, is no longer the holy of holies as far as those of the fair sex are concerned. Ivy Lawrence and Frances Cohen will uphold feminine honor when they take the affirmative side of "Resolved that Men Are More Influenced by Women Than by Money." Those egotistical engineers who feel it their duty to oppose the members of the Women's Debating Union will be represented by Thimble Duff and Bill MacNaughton.

The meeting will take place in room 33 at 5 o'clock, and it is said that the engineers have planned a warm welcome for all.

Once upon a time, a long time ago, there was a woman called Eve. do you remember? She more than proved her influence on her husband by tempting him with a luscious apple, and he was so bewildered by her charm that he absolutely forgot any promises that he may have made and took her gift. Is the modern Miss Eve? We are inclined to agree that she is a big improvement on that first damsel and if so she won't have a hard time proving her points. She proved them last year.

It is now very easy for a woman to get that beautiful fur coat because payments can be paid on such easy terms proving that money is no object and does not influence the man. O well, we shall see this afternoon, and though I'm not much of a prophetess that the girls will emerge victorious.

CORNER STONE CEREMONY REALIZES LONG-DEFERRED HOPE

By G. B. G.

One hesitates to place an estimate on the number of years since the building of a University Gymnasium at McGill was first hoped and planned. Certainly graduates of the "gay nineties" will tell you that the need was felt in their undergraduate days, and now their grandchildren are old enough to figure out how long ago that may be!

Similarly the need of an Armoury or Drill Hall for the McGill C.O.T.C. was felt even before the outbreak of the first Great War, and in 1912 the Canadian Government promised to construct a $100,000 Armoury if and when the University should provide the land. Lord Strathcona said he would purchase the land, the Government did not make good its part of the bargain. Lord Strathcona's intentions, however, were remembered after his death by Lady Strathcona who provided in her will sufficient money to purchase a site for the building, and this bequest is now worth approximately $105,000, which is being used for part of the cost of the Gymnasium-Armoury now being erected. The land for the building has been allotted by the University from "Macdonald Park," the large property north of Pine Avenue on which have already been erected the Molson Stadium, the Douglas Hall of Residence, the Pathological and the Neurological Buildings. All this ground was bought by the late Sir William Macdonald and presented to the University in 1906 while he was Chancellor of the University.

When more than six million dollars was subscribed by graduates and friends of the University as part of the Centennial celebration in 1921, it was expected that part of the sum would be used for the construction of a Gymnasium, but other uses of the money were deemed more necessary, such as the construction of the Arts Building and the new wing of the Redpath Library, and increase in the capital investments to provide yearly income needed for increasing the number and amounts of salaries paid to the teaching staff.

Thus, when Sir Arthur Currie was asked in 1931 what work could be undertaken by the Graduates' Society for the greatest benefit of the University, he stated at a meeting attended by Governors of the University and Officers of the Graduates' Society, "Of all the physical requirements at McGill, none is more urgent than a Gymnasium," and the Society was asked to undertake this project as a service to the University.

It was soon seen that a combined Gymnasium-Armoury Building would be desirable and the University agreed that Lady Strathcona's bequest could be used for this purpose. But the Society encountered many difficulties in the pursuit of its objective, and it was not until the end of 1935 that the Society, after overcoming these difficulties, was in a position to conduct a fund-raising campaign. In the meantime the unfortunate death of Sir Arthur Currie in November, 1938, had occurred. It was decided to ask the graduates to subscribe the funds and to erect the Gymnasium-Armoury as a memorial to Sir Arthur as Canada's outstanding soldier and a beloved Principal of McGill.

In February of 1936, the Society received authority from the University to conduct its campaign which was restricted to graduates of the University, and approximately $160,000 was raised. This amount was far below that required for the building as it had been planned, and it was three years before an announcement was made that the University approved the early construction of a modified building, which was finally started in June, 1939.

Major-General McNaughton Is Chief Speaker

BEATTY WILL PRESIDE

Work Well Under Way On Memorial to Sir Arthur Currie

The corner stone of the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium will be laid tomorrow at 12.15 by Lady Currie. The Chancellor of the University, Sir Edward Beatty, will preside at the ceremony and will introduce the chief speaker, Major-General A. C. L. MacNaughton C.B., C.M.G.

The corner stone is situated at the southwest corner of the building, facing Pine Avenue and will bear the inscription: "This Corner Stone was laid by Lady Currie, November 4, 1939. In it will be placed documents relating to the progress of the campaign to raise funds for the building and also two copies of the Daily, those of last Wednesday and of today.

After Major-General McNaughton has concluded his speech of dedication he will ask Lady Currie to lay the corner stone. When this is done Bishop Carlisle will invoke a blessing on the new building and the ceremony will end with "God Save the King," played by the McGill University Band. All students are cordially invited to attend and the Scarlet Key have made arrangements to accommodate a large number.

Gym Took Years to Plan

The Gymnasium is the result of many years' campaigning on the part of the Graduates' Society and the fulfillment of the hopes of many generations of McGill students. The building is to be three stories in height and is divided into two main parts: the Gymnasium and the Armoury. Work on the latter is rushing to completion, and it is hoped that it will be ready for occupancy by the end of November.

The Gymnasium proper will not be completed until some months later. In it will be space for many different sports. As well as the main gym, which can be divided into separate spaces for volleyball, badminton and squash by the use of sliding doors, there will be a large room used exclusively for boxing, fencing and wrestling.

Swimming Pool Later

At some later date it is hoped that a swimming pool will be added to the facilities of the building and provision has been made for this contingency in the design, the general appearance of the structure not being affected.

Among the specially invited guests at the ceremony tomorrow will be the Governors and Senate of the University, members of the Graduates' Society and representatives of the Gymnasium campaign, senior officers of the C.O.T.C., the Presidents of the Students' Society, the Union, the Women's Union, and the Athletics Council. A. J. C. Paine, the architect, and W. G. Hunt, the contractor, will also be present, as well as many others interested in the part the Gymnasium will play in University life.

Frank Cyril James

His youth, his brilliant career, his competence in matters financial, his popularity with his students, these are the characteristics of McGill's new principal which were most talked about yesterday, and which will be talked about in the future both near and distant.

In spite of the achievements which Professor James has managed to cram into the thirty-six years of his life, there are many who are amazed that so young a man should have been appointed to the principalship of this University, one of the largest and oldest on this continent. May we remind them that Sir William Dawson, "the man who made McGill", was even a year younger than our principal-elect when he was brought, unknown and unsung, from the Maritimes, to guide the way of a comparatively new and still struggling University. Yet, when Sir William died, McGill had become famous as a centre of learning. Perhaps a parallel will ensue, and McGill will become a far more renowned institution of learning than it is at present.

Only one word can describe Professor James' career between the time he graduated from the London School of Economics with the B.Com. in 1923 and the present—phenomenal. All this scholastic achievement, research and professorial work, as well as the wealth of practical experience he has brought to McGill will be used to the utmost when he moves from the School of Commerce to the East Wing next year.

Very little can we add to what has been said about his ability, his position, and his experience as an economist; suffice it to say that he has gained the distinction of having been designated by Professor Irving Fisher as one of the seventeen men who "really know money".

As far as the students of McGill are concerned, Professor James has already gained their respect as a lecturer in economics; many are coming to know him as a very approachable person as well. Although he will discontinue to act as Director of the School of Commerce when he assumes the duties connected with his new post, he hopes to revive the "teaching principalship" which was a feature of the days of Sir William Dawson and Sir William Peterson.

We welcome our new principal, but in so doing, we realize that he is no stranger here; in the two months he has been with us, he has already acquainted himself with many of McGill's traditions and customs, and has met no small number of the faculty, the student body, and the general public of Montreal.

"Young, vigorous, a man with ideas and high standards of culture, McGill is fortunate indeed to have him, and the University looks forward confidently to long years of progress under his leadership".

A Dream Comes True

The laying of the corner stone of the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow is the prelude to two history-making ceremonies both destined to fall within this present college session—the opening of the Armoury near the end of the month, and the completion of the Gymnasium itself at the end of the winter. This is not the time to make any further comment upon the Pine Avenue building; suffice it to say that we are privileged this year to see a dream come true—a dream that was first conceived more than fifty years ago.

Among other souvenirs of the present era of growth to be deposited within the corner stone will be two copies of the Daily, those of Wednesday and today; we feel honoured indeed that these copies have been chosen to portray what the students of today are doing and thinking.

Everything in the world has a name, by means of which it is recognized. Since this column hopes to appear regularly after its debut it too, ought to have a name. It must be labelled so that all might know it at a glance and read or shun it, whichever they desire. For days we searched for a suitable name, a name that would have the magnetic aroma of a delectable flower, the imaginative scent of a literary meadow and the feel of a practical essay, but alas, it was in vain. We have therefore decided to content ourselves with simply—"In Amongst the News."

We are at length firmly convinced that justice has departed from the earth. Even the worthy Wagner, (one of the brightest stars in the musical galaxy), is now being condemned simply because he happened to be born a German some two centuries ago. Fortunately Beethoven and lucky Bach have as yet escaped detection. Some of our friends in their over-anxiety to "make the world safe for democracy" have "risen" to the lowest depths of Herr Hitler's Arian philosophy. That demagogue also insists that in order to sustain public morale all non-Arian guenil must be ignored. These people admittedly, genuinely concerned, are raising the banner of "Down with Wagner" and "Boycott Wagnerian music." Our worthy friends have forgotten that we are not fighting the German people nor the German culture, but the Nazi Government. Do not kill a man just chest, but will the serpent.

Mr. Charles Lindbergh certainly soared beyond his height when he attempted to express American sentiment. We do not know where he received the knowledge nor the authority, unless he believes "all is written in the sky." It seems that the United States Senate is ignoring the lone eagle and planning to repeal the Embargo Act, of course they are more down to earth....

Amongst the books to be sent to the Tommies to read are Herr Hitler's Mein Kampf and Karl Marx' Das Kapital. It is whispered that the former is listed under "light satire", as for the latter, the only reason for its choice is the fact that it is thick enough to be used as a shield during a raid. Whether that be the case we cannot say, but we do venture to suggest that the Marxian Philosophy requires concentration and a peaceful atmosphere for adequate appreciation. Does that mean that "all is quiet on the Western front?"

RADIO FLASHES

"The Pursuit of Happiness"....

The Columbia Broadcasting System is presenting on Sundays immediately after the Philharmonic-Symphony programs a special series of broadcasts under the title, "The Pursuit of Happiness." The purpose of these presentations is, in a world deep in war and hate, to "turn aside from the stream of grave events," as Columbia puts it, and to devote attention to the serious things and the gay things that go to compose life in a great democracy. Burgess Meredith, the prominent actor, is permanent master of ceremonies on the broadcasts, and the music is conducted by Mark Warnow. Each week sees different artists and entertainers lending their talents to make the programs humorous, enjoyable, and thought-provoking.

This coming Sunday the broadcast will feature Paul Robeson and a large mixed chorus of white and coloured singers in an interpretation of the folk-oratorio, "Ballad For Americans," by Earl Robinson. This oratorio is described by the program director as a "mixture of verse and prose interpolations" and as authentic American folk music.

Interview With German Fugitive....

An interview from Montreal with a German refugee who was formerly Secretary-General of the German Peace Society will be broadcast next Monday at 7 p.m. by the CBC. Gerhardt Seger, now resident in the United States, was a member of the German Reichstag and its Committee on Foreign Relations. Re-elected to the Reichstag in March, 1933, contemporary with Hitler's rise, Seger was arrested and imprisoned in a concentration camp. His wife and baby, also made prisoners, were released when pressure was brought by high British officials on the German government. Seger afterwards escaped to Czechoslovakia and has since lectured widely in Europe and America.

Toscanini's Beethoven Series....

Continuing his series of concerts in the Beethoven Festival, Arturo Toscanini will present two symphonies that are not very often programmed—Beethoven's Second, in D Major and his Fourth, in B-flat Major. The Leonore Overture, No. 2, will also be performed.

The Beethoven Festival will conclude on December 2, with the presentation of the Ninth Symphony with the following soloists: Jaromir Novotna, a prospective Metropolitan Opera debutante, Kerstin Thorborg, Metropolitan contralto, Jan Peerce, tenor, and Nicole Moscona, basso. The personnel of the chorus has not yet been decided upon.

Sunday's Musical Fare....

As guest artist on its Sunday afternoon concert (CKAC at 3), the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra will present Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, renowned Florentine composer and pianist. Two of his works will be heard on the air for the first time. The composer will perform his own Piano Concerto No. 2, and Barbirolli will conduct the Overture to "Twelfth Night".

Jascha Heifetz, the celebrated violinist, will be soloist on the Sunday Evening Hour (CKAC at 9). He will be heard in the Havanaisa of Saint-Saens and the Scherzo-Tarantelle of Wieniawski. The orchestra will perform, among other things, Sibelius' Finlandia.

Crooks on "Voice of Firestone"....

Richard Crooks, well known American tenor, will be heard on Monday's broadcast of "The Voice of Firestone" as well as a mixed chorus and symphonic orchestra under the direction of Alfred Wallenstein. Crooks, who was booked for thirty concerts this season in Holland and the Scandinavian Peninsula, was forced by the outbreak of war to cancel his commitments and thus was able to return to New York much earlier than expected. He will sing works by Tosci, Dvorak, Donizetti, and Glover.

Here and There....

The CBC presents, tonight at 9 a word picture from fast Montreal-Toronto freight train.... Sir Ernest Macmillan and the Toronto Symphony present Sibelius' Symphony No. 1, in E Minor, on their concert Tuesday at 10. The soloist will be Eileen Law, Canadian contralto.... Orson Welles and Mary Astor join forces to present a radio version of the Nordhoff-Hall story, "Hurricane" (Sunday at 8-CKAC).... Rudy Vallee replaces Don Ameche for four weeks as master of ceremonies on the Sunday broadcast with Charlie McCarthy. His first appearance is on Sunday, November 12....

MUSIC

MONTREAL ORCHESTRA.

The tenth season of the Montreal Orchestra will open this Sunday under the direction of Dean Douglas Clarke. Among the distinguished groups to be heard this season are Georges Enesco, Percy Grainger, William Primrose and Nicolai Medtner. Student tickets at reduced price are on sale at the Conservatorium Office. The prices for the ten concerts are $3.00 and $4.00.

TWO-PIANO TEAM IN RECITAL.

The third popular Saturday afternoon recital at Tudor Hall offered Rose Goldblatt and Stanley Gardner in a program of original and re-arranged works for two pianos. This medium allows for novel and diverse arrangements of tonal combinations and rhythmic designs which a solitary pianist can barely suggest, if perform at all.

Bach was well-represented on the program, which opened with his Prelude and Fugue in C Minor, an arrangement of his work for organ. It was surprising to note how at times the mass of broad and rich tones emanating from the two pianos reminded one of the organ, especially in the swelling crescendo passages.

If the Prelude and Fugue was reminiscent of organ timbre, the Two-Part Inventions which followed, were definitely "clavier" in character. These were rapidly and deftly executed, and evinced fine gradations of tone. In contrasting mood were the two chorale preludes, "Humble us by Thy Goodness" and "In Thee is Joy". Miss Goldblatt and Mr. Gardner gave a fine performance of these works, which were played with a rich and flowing tone that is truly Bach.

Except for Busoni's arrangement of Mozart's Duetto-Concertante, the remaining selections were representative of present-day composers. First came the rhythmic "Over the Hills and Far Away" of Grainger, then the picturesque romanticism of Arnold Bax's "Moy Well", which was played with all the breadth and spaciousness it suggested. Both performers seemed to easily absorb the colourful English atmosphere portrayed by Bax. The rhapsodic "Andalusian Dance" by Manuel Infante and the tonally exciting "Rush Hour in Hong Kong" of Abram Chasins completed the formal program, but capitulating to the enthusiasm of the audience they played as an encore "The Harmonica-Player" by David Gulon.

The Debating Union

It seems as if a university debating society such as we have at McGill has two major functions. First there is the attempt to develop the public speaking ability of all its active members and enable them to present their views logically and effectively; and secondly there is the desire to bring about an exchange of views on issues which are vital to all of us as students and citizens. At the present time when we are all feeling so keenly about world affairs in general there is perhaps no other organization on the campus so important as this medium of public expression which aims at clearly defining the complex problems confronting us. As our principal-elect said the other day "If those problems are to be satisfactorily solved, and the future of the Anglo-Saxon ideal of civilization to be preserved, it is imperative that the men and women of our universities should at this time be considering their attitude toward both domestic and international problems."

The first great impression one receives when coming into contact with American students across the border is their keen interest in world affairs. And it is not merely an academic interest. They are clear as to "what side of the fence" on which they stand, and that they are prepared to support their convictions in many effective ways. It seems as if the American university has closer contact with the world outside its walls than in any other country in the world. For instance the McGill-Harvard debate took place in the Boston Public Auditorium before a large crowd that was really representative of a cross-section of American public opinion. These open forum events which are the highlights of Harvard debating serve to educate the minds and crystallize the ideas of the average citizen in matters of current social importance. And we know only too well that if there was ever a time when the university was needed to contribute all its moral strength to society it is now.

In view of this consideration it is important to think of the McGill Debating Union not only as a campus organization but as a powerful social organization. And the criterion which it must follow is to seek truth. By means of its innumerable discussions it must expose fallacies and undermine prejudices which threaten individual as well as social progress. And by virtue of its capacity to train the student to express himself effectively so that he may become a constructive force in society it must facilitate the dissemination of truth.

H. G. BAUGH, President,
McGill Debating Union.

GHOST OF JOHN HARVARD STALKS YARD AS ARCHITECTURE STUDENTS PLAY SPOOK

Cambridge, Mass.—Ghosts? Goblins? Is John Harvard stalking the Yard again?—these were the questions of Yardlings last night as they shouted reports that Robinson Hall has been haunted by the class of 1739.

Inside the lobby of the Hall, twelve architectural students were found putting on a pre-Halloween masquerade. Seated on three rows of stools, the would-be spooks groaned and stamped with their hands and feet in adoration of a jack o' lantern hung high on the wall.

"I have always preferred playing ghosts to ringing doorbells," one student exclaimed amid his weird incantations. "Tipping garbage cans is so messy. We prefer singing to the spirits of my ancestor's class of 1739." The Robinson Hall hauntings said they didn't mean liquid spirits. As the twelve masked architects hissed their voodoo dance, word came that Ghost Hater Charlie Apted of the Yard Police was on his way to break up the performance. A few reached for their burster's cards, as others decided that "discretion is the better part of valor," as one of them trenchantly phrased it.—Harvard Crimson.

ON EXAMINATIONS

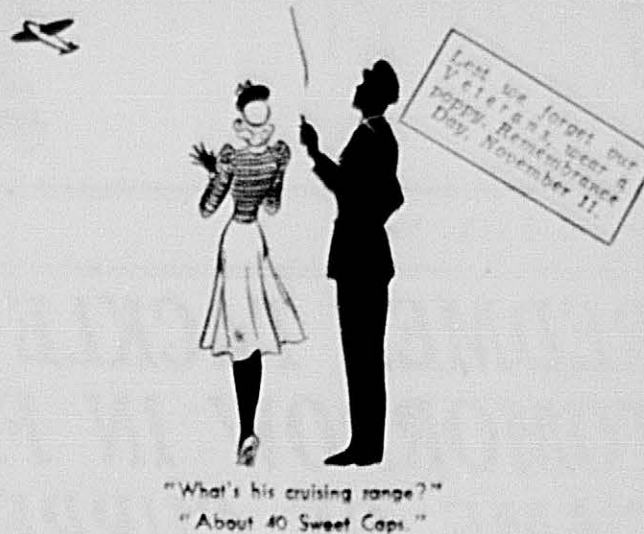

You have two alternatives:
Your Professor is either easy or hard.
If he is easy
You have nothing to worry about.
If he is hard
You have two alternatives:
Either you study hard or bluff.
If you study hard
You don't need to worry.
If you bluff
You have two alternatives:
Either your bluff works or it doesn't.
If it works
You don't have to worry.
If it doesn't work
You have two alternatives:
Either you are conditioned or you flunk.
If you are conditioned
You don't have to worry.
If you flunk
You don't have to worry any longer.

McGill Harriers Invade Middlebury This Weekend

Two Red Teams Will Compete in Triangle Meet — Senior, Freshmen Teams Entered

Two strong Red Harrier teams will invade Middlebury to compete in a triangular meet with Dartmouth and the runners of the local university. This is the second time that McGill runners have ventured into the friendly land across the border. The Harriers came off with all the honours in the international meet in Hanover last autumn, when Cooke and Cowan took first and second places respectively.

McGill is counting heavily on the running of Joe Berman who was the last man to place last year. With a season of hard training and a good store of experience picked up on active service, local experts hold every hope that he will better his standing, and even threaten the two big C's. Berman ran away with the 440 and the 880 in the Intermediate Track meet.

CO-ED ARCHERS HOLD TOURNAMENT TODAY

The R. V. C. Annual Outdoor Archery Tournament for individual championship is now in session. The contest was scheduled to take place Thursday afternoon and today, but due to the cold weather, there was no shooting yesterday. Those who were supposed to have taken part yesterday, will participate next Thursday instead. The shooting will take place on the upper campus at 2:00 p.m. today, as planned. Last year's outdoor champion, Eileen Harris, who captured the Silver Arrow, is not back this year.

year's indoor champion, Irene Smith, is back this year and will probably participate. The Beginner's Tournament will take place in the middle of November, thus giving the newcomers a chance to prove their merit.

Swordplay

By JACK

Today the Fencing Club, under the guiding hand of M. Leuchter, meets for the sixth time this season. There has been a good turnout so far this year but there is still room for more beginners. The city fencing league is scheduled to start next week with both the "A" and "B" teams seeing action. This league is run in order that all fencers will get tournament experience; hence any who do not get a place on the "A" team should have a place on the "B." McGill has always made a good showing in this league and two years ago was the winner. Why not repeat?

M. Leuchter, the new coach, comes to McGill with the highest of recommendations and is already very popular with the fencers. It won't be his fault if McGill does not bring back that intercollegiate trophy this year. McGill's team of last year is still out in full force but there will also be newcomers to give them a fight for their place on the Senior team.

It is understood that last Tuesday was the first practice of the Ladies' Fencing. Unfortunately this was very poorly attended but it is expected that the old gang led by Margo Van Reet, Pete Hampton and Josephine Taylor will soon be under way again. Rhoda Martin, who is quite well known in Provincial and Dominion tournaments, is at McGill this year. The ladies should have quite a showing.

As yet, there has been very few freshmen showing any interest in fencing at all. Although the C.O.T.C. may claim a lot of their time, they might be able to spare one or two afternoons a week. The cost of this sport is relatively small and all that will be needed will be a foil (about $2.50) and a pair of running shoes. All other equipment can be borrowed from the club manager. This Manager, Denis Ladouceur, will be on hand Monday, Wednesday or Friday at Strathairn School on Jeanne Mance Street just below Pine. Why not come out and try it?

Psychological Society
The first meeting for this session will be held in the Grill Room of the Union on Tuesday, November 14th at 8 p.m. The speaker will be Prof. Faris of the Sociology Department who will discuss the occurrence of insanity in cities. The meeting will be open to everyone interested. No fees will be charged.

Ushers
Any Freshmen wishing to usher at the McGill-Queen's football game this Saturday may sign the list in the McGill Union Tuck Shop. About 15 men are needed, and the first to sign will be allowed to usher.

Commerce
W. J. Armstrong, 3rd year Commerce student, was elected Vice-President of the School of Commerce, on Wednesday, by acclamation.

Camera Club
There will be a meeting of the Camera Club in Room 37 Engineers Building on Monday at 5 p.m. All are invited to attend.

SPORT NOTICES

HOCKEY
There will be no practice today. There will be a practice on Friday from 5-6 at the Forum for Freshmen only.
